B20 Sessions Program (B20 Task Forces Recommendations – Presentation and Discussions)

B20 Task Forces Sessions
Session 1 June 20 Pavilion 8, Conference Hall 8.3 09:45–11:00	INVESTMENTS & INFRASTRUCTURE Investment inflows that could have encouraged economic and prosperity growth and innovative development are a far cry from their pre-crisis level. Slumping investment activity in the private sector combined with government deficits weigh heavily against cross-border infrastructural investment and overall funding of the real sector. The low rate of return of infrastructural investments is yet another drag on growth. At the same time, the demand for direct long-term investment (including investment in infrastructure) has been constantly rising in developed as well as in emerging economies. What can the G20 governments do to help restore investment inflow into the real sector and infrastructure? What are the ways to encourage private investment in infrastructure and real assets, including cross-border flows? Is it possible to enhance financial return from investments in infrastructure and green economy? Moderator: Kirill Dmitriev, CEO, Russian Direct Investment Fund; Task Force Chairman Speakers: Marcus Wallenberg, Chairman of ICC G20 Advisory Group and Chairman and CEO, Skandinaviska Enskilda Banken (SEB) Danny Truell, Chief Investment Officer and Member of Investment Committee, Wellcome Trust, Investment Division Hans-Paul Buerkner, Chairman, The Boston Consulting Group

Session 2 June 20, Pavilion 3 9:00–11:00	TRANSPARENCY AND ANTI-CORRUPTION Globalization notwithstanding, businesses continue to be dogged by corruption at both local and international level. Governments are no more able to come up with a one-size-fits-all solution than companies are capable of imposing a unified code of conduct. Nevertheless, companies can take a big step forward if they rely on best practices in developing such codes and improve their supply chains. Interaction between companies and government is one of the most important ingredients in successfully fighting corruption. What can companies do to combat corruption? How should the G20-B20 dialogue be developed in order to best fight corruption? How can the transparency of public procurement be secured? Is there any serious anti-corruption effect to be expected from due training of public servants, manufacturing companies' staff and SME employees? What is the role of Joint Operation Centres and Anti-Corruption Centres of Excellence?

	Moderators: Andrey Bugrov, Vice President, Interros; Task Force Chairman Brook Horowitz, Director of Business Standards and Regions, IBLF Speakers: Giuseppe Recchi, Chairman of the Board, ENI SpA Steve Almond, Chairman of the Board, Deloitte Touche Tohmatsu Limited Michael Andrew, Chairman, KPMG International Peter Solmssen, Member of the Managing Board and General Counsel, Siemens AG Arun Nanda, Director, Mahindra and Mahindra Qitao Liu, President, China Communication Construction Paul Polman, CEO, Unilever
Session 3 June 20 Pavilion 5, Conference Hall 5.2 09:00–11:00	FINANCIAL SYSTEM – RESTORING CONFIDENCE AND GROWTH The latest global financial crisis has brought into the open the importance of systemic risk management and hardening the requirements for banking capital and liquidity. Much has been done by the G20 and international monetary institutions to perfect global and multilateral financial regulation. This work should have led to growth and stability. How shall we assess the palpable outcome of those efforts? What are the important prerequisites for financial stability and economic growth? What is the optimum financial market regulation to achieve an ideal balance between stability and growth? How can we make funding more available to SME and help secure innovation-oriented economic development? How can we secure the overall financial markets infrastructural development and that of emerging markets in particular?

Session 4 June 20 Pavilion 8, Conference Hall 8.2 09:00–11:00	TRADE AS A GROWTH DRIVER G20 has put a lot of effort into broadening the scope of global trade and combating protectionism. Renewal of the standstill on protectionism, finalizing negotiations and a trade facilitation treaty to be signed during the upcoming ministerial conference in Bali are at the top of the agenda. To what extent are trade and production interrelated? Won't trade facilitation measures absent due production support cause new financial bubbles? How do the trans-regional trade and investment agreements due for signing anytime soon fit in with the general conception of freedom of goods and capital movement? How well-grounded are the fears that the required preferences for trade in goods and services can be misused for unfair competition?

INNOVATION AND DEVELOPMENT AS GLOBAL PRIORITIES

The economic crisis has had its deleterious influence on innovation policies, although at no other time has there been a need for such policies to be efficient and comprehensive. The flexibility of intellectual property regimes is of particular importance.

What is the role of:

- Intellectual property: support the transition towards a more flexible IP regulation; promote conditions of fair competition in innovation markets.
- Energy: Provide access to affordable energy and a fast-tracked development of renewables and green technologies.
- Biotechnologies: healthy lifestyle as a national priority in healthcare; innovating solutions in healthcare.
- Information and communication technology (ICT): support open for all internet; new business models (including efficiency gains in agricultural industry) via ICT.
